

Brandeston Hall

Learning Support Department

At Brandeston Hall School we welcome pupils from a wide range of backgrounds and differing abilities. We believe our approach will maximise the potential of each individual pupil, whatever his or her starting point in terms of academic merit. Although all our teachers are able to facilitate the learning of all our children, the Learning Support Department plays a distinct role in the learning process. Our task is to identify children who may need extra support in English and/or Mathematics. Support comes in the form of either small group in-class teaching with a member of the department or a one to one session once or twice a week in the Learning Support class room with a trained Special Educational Needs teacher. We encourage all children to strive for personal best through a variety of learning and teaching strategies which aim to promote self-confidence and self esteem.
